ABOUT NED NATTER

The Ned Natter Show takes us away from the doom and gloom for a moment, Ned Natter might be a bit out of date, but he still picks up on the changes in our world, some interesting and many simply ludicrous, he's there to see you through the lot and delivers the laughter we all need in these complicated, perhaps uncertain times. He even longs to get into that lonely 16 square feet of tractor cab and put on smile on the faces of those at the frontline of agriculture - farming is not an online game, there's no 'app' for farming and it needs new blood. Ned Natter offers an escape for a moment and at the end of each show he summarizes the situation in one sentence - so until next time, keep a smile on your face, think positive and don't sweat the small stuff, the grass is not always greener on the other side it might just be a freeway!

Right now we need farmers more than ever, give a thought to those who put their hearts, souls and lives into the land. From our family to yours it's Ned Natter with The Ned Natter Show, every Wednesday at www.NedNatter.com

ABOUT RUSH "TO THE RESTROOM"

Me guest political correspondent and incontinent has to rush to the restroom frequently and never quite finishes his commentary. Rush was born in Grundy County TN and did spend years in DC, only not lobbying, he was a conservative senator's chauffeur, all those long waits caused Rush to get a weak bladder. But when a little scandal blew up - see Rush knew everywhere the Senator went, he drove him there, old Rush got a nice pay off and bought a small farm in Florida. Still all those years of rhetoric have rubbed off on Rush and he still chats to like-minded folks in DC, so his opinions are up to date but always a little out of whack too!

THE OTHER FOLKS ON THE SHOW

ELSIE NATTER (The Trouble & Strife)

You'll never see old Elsie, Ned's disturbed as she still insists on wearing a thong and he reckons that's why there's a worldwide shortage of elastic. She's pear-shaped all bottom and no top, always has a cigarette burning in her hand. Her thighs are wide her calves nearly match, she wears flip-flops and an ankle [Anchor] chain, she's always got that annoying ankle biting mutt (she named it Ned) at her dirty feet. Elsie was, according to Ned, born in a cowshed, but we know nothing more about her.

DOLLY NATTER (And you thought only sheep were cloned)

Ned's daughter and stable lass, she fell off her bike when she was 5 and has never been right since. Her pet goat is called Butt.

As a hobby she likes to make white tee-shirts covered in shite with the Natter logo "Ned Natter Shite Matters" - Dolly was born, we know little else.

NAN NATTER (The Old Crow)

Ned's neurotic 94 year old mother is not only a sight for blinkered eyes, she's a miserable moaning old hag that gets into a state about the simplest things. She hates her limited income, people who use coupons at the store, men with beards, men without beards, farm animals and her own reflection. She's rude, out of date and over here,

BUC NATTER

Ned's twin brother, toys with farming, mostly horses, see Buc is the original Natter family 'turf accountant', all cash is invested in gambling, betting on horses [the gee-gees]. The odds are high and Buc is frequently in hiding.

SKIP NATTER

Ned claims another distant relative, Skip Natter is a cockney sounding Londoner who ran off to Australia to make his fortune, only they didn't like the sound of his ideas [or his voice] Skip calls in now and again asking for financial help for one of his crackpot business schemes. Ned reckons Skip was born in the London gutter where he was later adopted by a road sweeper and his wife.

THE SERIOUS SIDE TO THE NED NATTER SHOW

Florida farmer and radio-podcast host Ned Natter adds an important message in each of his comedy shows - remember farmers are getting older, some more than others, it's time some new blood came down on the farm and gave us a hand - in all irony this is no public service announcement, it's backed up by some sobering government statistics, the USDA Census of Agriculture reports that US farmers are mostly white and over 50 a large number are way into their 70's - whilst Natter offers us a comedic weekly escape from reality he's happy to remind you 'there's no app for farming'.

THE MODERN MESSAGE

WHY THE NED NATTER SHOW MATTERS

The opportunities to work remotely offer new hope to a rural existence, many farmers already balance agriculture as a part-time occupation, it doesn't always require full-time commitment and yet offers endless benefits to families, also kids, our future, are healthier mentally and physically, the opportunity to participate as a family in the production of food is a unique chance to bond with each other and be at one with nature, whilst remote employment provides the option to balance income whilst developing any agricultural operation. Size is not all-important either, the majority of US farms are still under 10 acres and the chances to fill new markets are endless with less than 1% of farms filling the burgeoning organic sector. Growing food in the US offers a ready marketplace for produce and the expansion of environmentally sustainable practices adds a premium. Then there is the further importance of growing and producing food for the US, which fills a gap and continues to supply markets potentially ready to be consumed by imports, along with the already proven associated risks to our food chain and health, particularly from overseas countries lacking the vital checks, balances and safety controls in place within the US food and agricultural sector. Ned Natter might say it with humor but there is no better time to look to the land and its endless potential.
